I grew up in the south of Spain in a little community called Estepona. I was 16 when one morning, my father told me I could drive him into a remote village called Mijas, about 18 miles away, on the condition that I take the car in to be serviced at nearby garage. Having just learned to drive and hardly ever having the opportunity to use the car, I readily accepted. I drove Dad into Mijas and promised to pick him up at 4 p.m., then drove to a nearby garage and dropped off the car. Because I had a few hours to spare, I decided to catch a couple of movies at a theatre near the garage. However, I became so immersed in the films that I completely lost track of time. When the last movie had finished, I looked down at my watch. It was six O'clock. I was two hours late!

I knew Dad would be angry if he found out I'd been watching movies. He'd never let me drive again. I decided to tell him that the car needed some repairs and that they had taken longer than had been expected. I drove up to the place where we had planned to meet and saw Dad waiting patiently on the corner. I apologised for being late and told him that I'd come as quickly as I could, but the car had needed some major repairs. I'll never forget the look he gave me. "I'm disappointed that you feel you have to lie to me, Jason". "What do you mean? I'm telling the truth".

Melting of ice is perhaps most obvious effect of global warming. The vast ice sheets of the Arctic are getting smaller every year. Many glaciers the huge rivers of ice that flow in slow motion down the mountains are disappearing completely. Melting ice contributes to rising sea levels, which could flood and destroy homes in low lying areas. Sea levels have already risen by 8 inches over the last hundred years. That might not sound like much, but as the oceans warm and the glaciers melt, levels will continue to rise faster and faster. Before too long, many long-lying villages, towns, cities and islands will be threatened by flooding.
